HERBERT TRIAL DATE FOR FEB. 14TH

APPEARS IN COURT TUESDAY MORNING WITH ATTORNEY THOMAS

GIVES A NEW $500 BOND

Failed to Appear January 14 When Trial On Embezzlement Charge Was Called

Lee R. Herbert, former Washington township man, now living in Cincinnati, O., appeared in circuit court Tuesday morning with his attorney Fred V. Thomas and bondsmen to arrange for a new trial date on a charge of embezzlement. By agreement with Prosecutor Albert Williams, Special Judge John H. Allee set the new trial date for Feb. 14. Herbert was scheduled to go on trial on the charge Jan. 14 but failed to appear for trial, putting his bondsmen, Ralph Brannaman and J. A. Herbert of Cloverdale, in the embarrassing position of having a $500 bond which they had signed, forfeited. Special Judge Allee at the time, however, withheld judgment on the bond forfeiture.

Attorney Thomas stated at the time that Herbert had moved from his former home in Dayton, O., and could not be reached and notified of the trial date. As soon as Attorney Thomas got in touch with Herbert he agreed to appear Tuesday morning for the purpose of setting a new trial date and posting a new bond. Herbert well known through his primary campaign for nomination for sheriff last spring, is charged in an affidavit filed by Fred Holsapple of Washington township with keeping $5 which Holsapple alleged he gave Herbert to lease certain property from Fred Bennett.

RESCUE 45 FROM SHIP

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22—All 45 crew members of the Japanese freighter Hokuman Maru, which was in a sinking condition in the north Pacific with a heavy starboard list, were reported rescued by the American mail liner President Jackson.

This information was flashed to the Globe wireless station here from Capt. M. Jensen, master of the Jackson, which left the Japanese craft behind after the rescue and proceeded toward Victoria.

The rescue took less than two hours. The President Jackson hove to near the distressed freighter shortly after 2 p. m. Pacific time, in response to the latter's SOS, and at 3:45 p. m. the liner was on her way.

Controlled Speed Is Need Of Today

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR MOFFETT IN SPEAKER AT DEPAUW CHAPEL

"Let us respect speed but seek always to hold it in check," said Donovan C. Moffett, DePauw's basketball coach, speaking in chapel Tuesday morning. Today we make flights not voyages, and instead of mentioning a tour of Europe we speak of taking a fling at the continent. We have never learned the true value of relaxation he pointed out, and we are suffering in consequence.

His most illuminating illustration of the point was the explanation that in the game of football, which is certainly one of the most strenuous of sports, while timer's watches are set for 60 minutes, actual playing time is confined to 10 or 12 minutes with as many as 140 plays run off in this time. It would be quite impossible, he said, for the players to respond to such demands for energy if they were not able to relax completely in the intervals between plays. Effective muscular coordination can come only after such relaxation.

He referred also to the fact that in the moments of emergency which arise in the lives of all individuals it is the ability to concentrate one's attention which is usually the deciding factor. The ability to relax is closely correlated to the ability to concentrate. In closing he struck a blow at the Puritanic conscience, which is invariably disturbed when it finds itself confronted with "idleness."

Mrs. Anna Cotton Tate of the DePauw University School of Music sang the Lullaby from Jocelyn to open the services.

CITIES MAY LOSE SHARE OF GAS TAX

NEW BILL PROPOSED IN LEGISLATURE WOULD TAKE AWAY SHARE OF CITIES

STATE TO GET BENEFIT

Portion Lost Locally Would Be Turned Over To Highway Commission, Counties To Get Share.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 22, (INS)—Representative Glenn R. Slenker, Republican of Monticello, said he thought something out to be done for the "little fellow" who drives a low-priced car, so today he placed a bill before the 79th general assembly which he claims will do that very thing.

The man who drives a small car in the inexpensive class would pay $2.50 for an automobile license under Slenker's proposed law instead of eight to ten dollars as under the present statute. And the state would raise its $4,000,000 annually, according to the Monticello colon.

Under the terms of the measure, cars would be licensed at fees proportionate to the cost of the automobile. The fellow driving a car that cost less than $1,000 would pay only $2.50 while the man steering a chromium plated 16 cylinder automobile would pay $200 for his tags.

The scale for license tags in Indiana under Slenker's proposal would be: Cars costing up to $1,000, $2.50; $1,500, $3.00; $2,000, $3.50; $2,500, $4.00; $3,000, $4.50; $3,500, $5.00; $4,000, $5.50; $4,500, $6.00; $5,000, $6.50; above $5,000, $200.

Another measure which is scheduled to be introduced soon in the house is a bill to move the expiration date on auto licenses from Dec. 31 to June 30.

The arguments for this change are: 1. That the present system deprives persons of their cars in January and February because of the heavy expenses families bear during the winter and Christmas season.

2. That people use their cars more in the summer, hence the state's revenue would be enhanced by heavier purchases of licenses on July 1.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 22—Re-allocation of gasoline tax funds sent to cities and counties, and enactment of legislation which will budget these funds, either by the county councils or the county commissioners, appeared certain to come before the Indiana legislature.

A bill is now pending in the house, backed by the Indiana Taxpayers Association which would provide that county councils would budget the gasoline tax money sent to the counties, and after certain objectionable features in the bill which would eliminate controversial features in contracts already let or claims now pending, the bill likely will get the O. K. of the legislature.

Re-allocation of gasoline tax money is almost certain for the reason there is an agreed inequality in many of the counties. One glaring example is pointed out in Brown county which raises only $7,000 by taxation for road purposes and receives more than $50,000 from the gasoline tax money. It is likely that these inequalities in the distribution will be corrected in a bill soon to be prepared.

The 1933 legislature inadvertently, it is said, took off all the checks on the gasoline tax funds, and as now provided, county commissioners are permitted to spend this money for whatever purpose they see fit and without advertising for competitive bids on road repair purchases.

He will speak on the development of Kiwanis International which comprises nearly one thousand and nine hundred clubs in the United States and Canada with a membership of nearly one hundred thousand persons. The first Kiwanis club was organized in 1915 at Detroit, Mich.

The committee on Kiwanis Education, composed of Milt Brown, O. H. Smith and Truman G. Yunker will assist the regular program committee of William Bishop and Russell Brown in planning the program. Kiwanis clubs of the Indiana District as well as throughout the United States and Canada will observe the anniversary this week. One of the highlights of the event will be the address of Dr. William J. Carrington, International president, of Newark, New Jersey, to be broadcast over a coast-to-coast hook-up.

The Greencastle Club was organized in 1919 and has forty-three members selected from the business and professional men of the community. The club has been extremely active in underprivileged child work and established the Kiwanis wing at the James Whitcomb Riley hospital for children. It has also sponsored and promoted the activities of the I-H club movement, established a program of vocational guidance for local high school students, maintained a free dental clinic for underprivileged children, promoted the adoption of higher business and social standards and many other worth-while community activities.

Sixty-nine clubs comprise the Indiana district of Kiwanis. The state is divided into eight divisions, each headed by a lieutenant governor. The local club, of which Marshall D. Abrams is president, is in the fifth division under the leadership of Mr. Shinn.

RECKLESS SPEEDERS

Automobile and truck drivers at times appear to "go reckless." They speed up on the downtown streets until their driving is dangerous and the only reason there is not a fatal crash, is that the other fellow is cautious enough to keep out of the way of the driver who is in a hurry. Only this morning we saw a truck being driven south on Jackson street, cross Walnut at a speed not less than 40 miles an hour. Fortunately for this "hurry-up" driver and anyone else who might have been crossing Jackson on Walnut at the time, he had a clear right-of-way.

OHIO MANHUNT SPREADS NETS FOR A. KARPIS

FEDERAL OPERATIVES HUNT KARPIS AND COMPANION KILLER, CAMPBELL

MAY BE IN HIDING TODAY

Were Reported In Stolen Car Near Wadsworth. Physician Kidnaped By Killers.

MONROE, Mich., Jan. 22, (UP)—Alvin Karpis and Harry Campbell, leading public enemies, abandoned their car south of here today and were believed to have kidnaped another motorist and either sought refuge in Detroit's underworld or fled west to Chicago.

Through license and motor numbers the car was positively identified as that of Dr. Horace Hunsicker, whom they kidnaped, then abandoned near Columbus, O., last night, continuing in his auto.

The car was found in the middle of a highway, its motor still running at 5:30 a. m.

Lacking reports of any stolen cars, Monroe police believed the pair stole another motorist and forced him to accompany them either to Detroit or Chicago.

MEDINA, O., Jan. 22—Dr. H. H. Hunsicker of Allentown, Pa., reported to Sheriff Roy Kruggel last night that two men, whom Sheriff Kruggel believes may have been Alvin Karpis and Harry Campbell, kidnaped him near Sellersville, Pa., at midnight.

The physician said the two men, armed with machine guns, forced him into the back seat of his car. One drove the doctor's car and the other took the wheel of a second machine.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 22, (UP)—A gigantic manhunt for Alvin Karpis, bandit, kidnaper, and public enemy No. 1, and his killer companion, Harry Campbell, was under way throughout Ohio early today. The fugitives, heavily armed, were believed either speeding through the northern part of the state in a stolen car or "holed-up" in a hideaway, near Wadsworth.

Federal agents and police in Ohio cities and towns blocked highways and searched underworld haunts, believing they soon would apprehend the last members of the Karpis-Barker gang, charged with the Bremer kidnapping and other major crimes.

All police officers were heavily armed and under orders to shoot to kill.

Department of justice agents believed their quarry might have "holed-up" in some hideaway not far from Wadsworth. They reasoned they would not have released Hunsicker, knowing he would give the alarm, unless they were near a place they regarded as a safe refuge.

Tire tracks indicated the thugs had continued westward after leaving Hunsicker bound in a Grange hall. But as a precaution against their doubling back into Pennsylvania, authorities in that state watched highways. Police in Indiana and Illinois were asked to guard highways against the possibility of their heading for hideouts in Chicago.

Dr. Hunsicker is attached to the Pennsylvania State hospital at Allentown. Sunday night he was driving there from Philadelphia. Near Quakertown a car containing two men forced him to halt. One got into his car, held a pistol against his head, forced him to drive after the car driven by his companion. Three miles farther on the thugs' car was abandoned. One man took the wheel. Hunsicker sat beside him and the third man sat in the rear seat covering him with a pistol.

ROOSEVELT TO WIELD BIG STICK ON CONGRESS

WORD FROM WHITE HOUSE INDICATES THERE WILL BE NO FOOLISHNESS

APPROPRIATIONS BIG ISSUE

Mr. Roosevelt Notifies Congress He Wants Big Money With No Strings Attached

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22, (UP)—President Roosevelt told congressional leaders today he wanted the $4,880,000,000 work relief bill passed with no strings attached to restrict the vast powers he will have under the measure.

This ultimatum from the White House came as a Democratic insurgent rebellion developed to force earmarking of funds for specific projects.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns and appropriations committee chairman James Buchanan, after a White House conference, said they would inform the house Democratic caucus late today of the president's stand.

The caucus was forced by revolting Democrats, who want to break down the huge fund into definite "pork allocations" and write in a provision preventing Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes from administering the new program.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22, (UP)—The house rules committee yielded to Democratic insurgents today in the fight over the $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill, thrusting the issue directly before a caucus of the 322 Democrats slated this evening.

The committee approved a "gag rule" designed to prevent earmarking of the huge fund, but agreed to have the caucus pass on the rule before it is presented to the house.

Habeas Corpus Hearing Held

ARTHUR ROBERTS, 18, ALLEGES ILLEGAL CONFINEMENT TO PENAL FARM

A hearing on the habeas corpus petition of Arthur Roberts, 18, against Ralph Howard, superintendent of the Indiana state farm, was held before Judge C. C. Gillen in circuit court Tuesday morning. Roberts alleged he is illegally confined to the farm.

Representing Roberts at the hearing were Adele Storck and Wilbur A. Royse of Indianapolis while a representative from the attorney general's office represented the farm.

The case was continued until Friday by Judge Gillen following the submitting of evidence by the petitioner's attorneys, in order to give the attorney general's office time to look into court records at Indianapolis.

In the petition filed late Monday Roberts cites the fact that he pleaded guilty before Judge Frank P. Baker in Marion county criminal court April 14, 1933 to a charge of grand larceny but that judgment was withheld and he was released from custody.

The petitioner further alleged that on Sept. 7, 1934 the "court" unlawfully, illegally, and without warrant of law revoked said withheld judgment and ordered petitioner imprisoned in the Indiana state farm for one year.

The petitioner alleged the order of Sept. 7 was "wholly null and void and that his imprisonment is illegal and without warrant or authority of law."

Mercury Drops To Three Above

As result of the cold blast which originated in the northwest last weekend, Greencastle and Putnam county shivered in near zero weather Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Tuesday, the mercury keeping within striking distance of zero for almost twenty-four hours. Weather indications indicated no relief during the day but some relief in the form of slightly rising temperature was forecast for Wednesday.

Nature of the ordinances which City Attorney Wilbur S. Donner has drawn were not revealed.

COLD WAVE TAKES HEAVY DEATH TOLL

BELOW ZERO WEATHER REPORTED IN NORTHWEST AND EASTWARD

TO MODERATE BY TOMORROW

Warmer Weather Is Forecast, But Most Sections, Except Florida, Is Hit By Cold.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22, (UP)—Winter dealt staggering blows to the entire North American continent again today, with snow, sleet, rain, flood and the most intense cold of the season—in some regions of many years—running up a huge toll of death and suffering.

Northwestern prairies and the northern Pacific coast gained slight relief from the cold wave that dropped out of Alaska's ice box Sunday, but weather predictions for the east were full of the phrases "much colder" and "snow followed by cold."

The northern Pacific coast found its thermometers slowly rising, but was threatened for the second time in a week by torrential rains. In Seattle 2.45 inches of rain fell in the storm's wake.

Even the balmy gulf states, except Florida, felt the cold. Texas warmed slightly, but it was much colder in Louisiana, Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas, where chill winds brought continued rain to swell flooding rivers and creeks. Red Cross workers cooperated with local authorities in evacuating and caring for hundreds of families, principally negroes, driven from lowland homes.

States from Iowa eastward to Pennsylvania felt the storm's brunt this morning. It was 3 degrees below zero in Chicago at dawn, 6 degrees colder than the season's previous low. That was warm compared with the 15 to 20 below common in North Dakota and Minnesota, but that also was warm in comparison with temperatures of 24 hours previously. It was 32 on the minus side yesterday in Devil's Lake, N. D., and 28 below at Williston, N. D.

Ice covered three-fourths of the United States as a result of the rapid freeze following thaws, rains and sleet. Motoring was hazardous to an extreme in Chicago, St. Louis and a dozen cities of the Atlantic coast. Train schedules were disrupted by frozen switches, glazed rails and lowered efficiency of manpower.

Air lines maintained flights through the midwest, but cancelled many in the east.

Snow fell today over virtually all the east, from Canada to West Virginia and Alabama. The cold invading the south kicked thermometer columns down to 42 in Mobile and New Orleans, 20 in Shreveport, and 18 in Vicksburg. Miami and Tampa shone by contrast, with a springlike 72 degrees.

The storm's death toll, while only roughly estimable, was above a score. Two vagrants froze to death in Chicago, three persons died in Milwaukee, three drowned in the southern floods and motor accidents on the ice-flooded streets and highways were counted in thousands.

Ten Die, 2 More Missing In Blast

EXPLOSION OCCURS 1,000 FEET
UNDER SURFACE IN COAL MINE

GILBERTON, Pa., Jan. 22.—Trapped in a coal mine level 1,000 feet from the surface, 10 miners were killed yesterday, two were reported missing and 71 were injured by an explosion which tore through the Gilberton colliery of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company.

Two of those injured were reported in a critical condition. Twenty-five of the hurt were confined in hospitals. Two hundred workers in the shaft were imperilled by the terrific blast.

Most of the injured suffered from poisonous fumes that seeped to other levels of the working and penetrated even to neighboring mines of the Mahoney valley coal fields on the southwestern edge of the state's hard coal anthracite area.

Eight of the dead were positively identified as Richard Evans and Joseph Stoppey of Gilberton, Harvey Morgan and Charles Wagner, Valley View; John Murphy and Charles Andrew, Frackville; Charles Rozuskie, Minersville, and Harry Mauger, Mahanoy City. Two other bodies were partially identified as those of August Sincavage and Anthony Weichster, both of Minersville.

Anthony Pichalonis of Shenandoah and Harry Lengle of Tremont were reported unaccounted for.

Seriously injured in the Valley View hospital are Gurney Dunleavy, Valley View, and Tony Mullock, Girardville, suffering from burns.

The explosion tore through the sixth level of the mine, 1,000 feet from the entrance and 1,100 feet below the surface. Most of the casualties, rescuers said, were among the 69 men working on this level.

Officials were unable to say whether gas or dynamite caused the blast. They placed the number overcome at 58, but physicians said few of them were in serious condition.

Rescue cars from the United States bureau of mines at Nesquehoning and Wilkes-Barre were rushed to the scene, together with ambulances, doctors and nurses from Pottsville and nearby towns.

Police kept the crowds back out of danger as the first rescue crews plunged into the mine, only to be driven back by the poisonous gases and "afterdamp." Gas masks and helmets were necessary before the task of bringing out the victims could be continued.

Dr. Miller in speaking about it this morning looked at the whole matter in a happy way and said he told his wife it was her first time to get into "front page" print. He sent copies of The Banner to relatives and friends instead of writing them letters.

Suit of the Wolverine Brass Works against Louis B. Cowgill, was re-docketed in circuit court Tuesday and a finding made by the court that the defendant is now employed and earning wages, against which a writ of garnishee was ordered issued to satisfy a judgment.

UTILITY BILL PASSES HOUSE

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 22 (UP)—The Woodard-Coers bill prohibiting utilities from engaging in subsidiary businesses was passed by the house, 57 to 40, today after bitter debate. The bill would prevent utilities from selling anything other than their by-products, such as coke, and even would prevent them from operating radio stations.

BODY IS FOUND

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22 (UP)—The body of William (Big Nose) Weiss, kidnaped and slain gambler, was found today in Neshaminy creek, near Crocyden. The body was near where members of the Mals gang, which confessed the killing, said they had thrown it.

Saw Hauptmann Near Lindy Estate

DEFENSE WILL ATTACK VERACITY OF WOODSMAN WITNESS

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 22, (UP)—Millard Whited, a Sourlands lumberman, today declared he saw Bruno Richard Hauptmann near the Lindbergh home shortly before Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., was kidnaped and slain.

The lank, gangling woodsman repeated the testimony he gave when Hauptmann was extradited to New Jersey from the Bronx. The defense has promised to produce witnesses who will attack Whited's reputation for veracity.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 22, (UP)—State Trooper Lewis J. Bornmann was called as the first of today's witnesses in Bruno Richard Hauptmann's trial on charges of murdering Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. He identified a chisel which he said he found on the Lindbergh estate the morning after the kidnaping. The state offered it in evidence.

Frederick Pope of defense counsel objected to the testimony on the ground it was irrelevant and immaterial.

The chisel was admitted in evidence. Attorney General David T. Wilentz showed Bornmann the ladder found outside the nursery window.

The witness said he had saved one of the uprights in two in the course of his investigation. The piece of white lumber nailed to the ladder was applied by Arthur Koehler, government wood expert, Bornmann said, to keep it intact. The ladder was thereupon offered in evidence.

Pope objected on the same grounds that the defense had employed against previous attempts to introduce it.

The defense maintains the ladder is not in the same condition it was in when found on the Lindbergh estate. "The ladder, one of its sections that is, has been cut in two," Pope added.

Pope said the ladder might be admitted if its history was traced, and it were shown the ladder was not changed materially in its movements to the state police training school at Wilburtha, and to Washington. "We make a stronger objection yet—there has been shown no connection between the ladder and this defendant here. No one has even suggested there was a connection."

Justice Trenchard replied that he "wondered if Mr. Pope has overlooked the testimony of an old gentleman who said he saw the car near Hopewell on March 1."

Pope replied that he did not recall the witness, Amandus Hochmuth, having described the ladder in the Hauptmann car.

"I don't know of any case, your honor, where the state has introduced into evidence any piece of property connected with a crime without providing custody."

"We have a right to have every man produced who had anything to do with this ladder after it was removed from the Lindbergh home."

Wilentz argued for admission of the ladder as evidence:

"We have proved that this ladder is in the same condition as it was when found on the Lindbergh estate," he said.

"Certainly there have been changes in this ladder—we have explained that the changes were necessary for the purposes of this investigation."

The kidnap ladder was finally admitted into evidence by Justice Trenchard.

Governor Moodie Gets Reprieve

NORTH DAKOTA SUPREME COURT NOT TO RULE UNTIL THURSDAY

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 22, (UP)—Announcement by state supreme court that it will rule Thursday on a writ designed to unseat Gov. Thomas Moodie gained a reprieve last night for the harried executive in efforts to oust him by impeachment.

The court's announcement came just in time to halt presentation to the state senate of a resolution of impeachment voted last week by the lower legislative house. House leaders immediately ordered the action upheld. It will be presented Friday if the court decision is in Moodie's favor, they said.

Opposition to Moodie, a Democrat, ostensibly is based on a contention that he had not been a resident of North Dakota for five years preceding his election, as required by law. He voted in Minneapolis in 1930 while employed on a Minneapolis newspaper, but contends he was only temporarily absent from North Dakota, where he maintained legal residence.

The underlying motive of his opponents is in the political upheaval which followed unseating last summer of former Gov. William Langer, nonpartisan League leader, who was

Government May Take State Land

REFORESTATION OF ACRES IN SOUTHERN INDIANA TO START SOON

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 22.—The Federal government's reforestation program in Indiana will start immediately the purchase of 500,000 sub-marginal land, the conservation department announced today.

The announcement follows receipt of word from Washington that the National Forest reforestation commission had voted to purchase the land.

First purchases of land in Martin, Brown, Jackson, and Floyd counties, Virgil S. director of the state conservation department said.

Although a federal purchase of 800,000 acres was approved last week, it is unlikely that no more than 200,000 acres will be included in the conservation program recommended to the legislature by the standing commission last week.

PUPPET SHOW TO BE GIVEN

A new thrill is provided the adult amusement seeker by the Famous Olvera Street Marionettes, due here on Thursday, Jan. 24, at the high school auditorium, for three performance. The puppets are exquisitely sculptured and dressed with infinite care. Many of the marionettes are exact replicas of famous movie stars and other celebrities. The program offers an abundance of comedy, drama and satire.

In the Famous Olvera Street Marionettes many of our citizens will have the opportunity to enjoy a new experience. Few here have seen a really artistic marionette show built on a large scale. The program gives our local people an opportunity to enjoy some of the fun experienced by those who saw the world's fair in Chicago, for the company brings a marionette version of the Century of Progress, and "Rip Van Winkle's Strange Interlude." Both will be given at the matinee and evening shows. However, the evening performance is a more sophisticated version intended for adult entertainment.

A puppet show built by artists and manipulated by intelligent and clever people gives us access to a rich field of humor, no expert human clown can ever equal; the humor that has been re-discovered for us by the animated cartoon, such as "Mickey Mouse." For added to the piquancy that is theirs through the very fact that they are puppets is the added piquancy of their ability to be fabulous, to make what we all know is impossible visible and audible facts. It is this disturbing likeness to human-kind that makes the puppet appealing. Yet it is in his unlikeness that he is comical.

CHAPTER I

It wasn't that Dan Brooks didn't like J. L. Higgins. More likely Dan didn't like J. L.'s paper boxes. It was all right being J. L.'s son-in-law and having Margaret for a wife and being set up in the paper box business in Higginsville—all that was all right. But paper boxes?

Dan much preferred thinking of "Broadway Bill" "Bill" was a horse, in case you've never read horse-racing tip sheets. "Bill" was a race-horse and Dan was the man who loved him. Loved him as tenderly as a mother loves a child.

If Dan hadn't fallen in love with Margaret, married her and gone into business in one of old J. L.'s many enterprises, he would have trailed the races, from track to track. So Dan had bought a horse instead, a beautiful, black thing that can as tough Heaven and Earth depended on it. Dan grinned a big wide grin as "Broadway Bill" tore down the dirt road in a blazing, shooting comet of dust.

Dan was not the quiet type. "Here we go! Into the stretch! Let's go, Whites! Break him!"

He sat in fits and starts, on the radiator of a shiny, new roadster, parked at the side of the road, gazing wildly at Whitey, the colored stable boy, brought the horse into the "home stretch." There was a huge cloud of dust, a whinny, and Whitey was bringing "Bill" back to the car.

Alice Higgins, the young and very beautiful lady at the wheel of the car, was breathless. "What'd he make it in?"

"One minute and forty seconds!"

"One forty! That chops another second off!"

Whitey dismounted. "Mr Brooks, this var animal can 'er pick 'em up and lay 'em down!"

Dan winked at Alice. "He's still stalling."

Whitey gaped. "Stallin'! Boss, if that horse go any faster nobody's gonna see him and de naked eye!"

There was a sudden flurry of

"Well, Boss, yo knows I'm honest, don't you?"

"Yeah."

"Yo knows I'd cut off my right hand afore I'd lie or alone I'd steal."

"Yeah, Well, what about it?"

"Yo knows I read the Bible and yo knows I never mess around or nothin'."

"Well, come on—come on."

"Well, Boss, I been addin' things up, and I been subtrackin' 'em, I been dividin' 'em, and I been multiplyin' 'em, and Boss, dey all come out de same answe'—It ain't honest for to keep 'Broadway Bill' here racin' for us and de squirrels!"

Dan almost barked. "Who asked your opinion? And in—"

A boy dashed up. "Oh, Mr Brooks—been lookin' all over for you. Your wife want you to come right home. There's a meeting tonight."

A meeting! That's all Dan needed. He'd have to sit with the rest of the Higgins clan while old J. L. laid down the law about business. He'd have to say yes whenever the rest of Higgins' sons-in-law said yes. He'd have to kneel and bow to old J. L. He'd have to arrive exactly on time or J. L. would have a fit, the old—

Yes, sir, that's all Dan needed!

The Higgins meal was over. And the meeting began. J. L. went into his speech. He started diplomatically enough, but then he began to read aloud to the gathered clan what was transpiring in the Higgins Paper Box business. All the other Higgins enterprises were flourishing. Only paper boxes. Boxes weren't doing so well. Old J. L. got to the core of the bad apple. Dan wasn't paying enough attention to business! J. L.'s torrent of words were very expressive in what J. L. expected of Mr. Dan Brooks.

"And," went on J. L., "beginning tomorrow morning, I shall expect you to devote yourself exclusively to your business—and I shall also have to ask you to dispose of your horse and stable. Now, regarding the acquisition of the Acme Lumber Company, I have had their state-wings and feathers and a brown and red rooster landed with accuracy on "Broadway Bill's" neck.

"Hot-diggity!" Whitey snarled widely. "He made it!"

Dan stared. "What's this?"

"Miss Alice, heah, been trainin' Skeeter to do dat."

"Skeeter?"

"Yassuh. Miss Alice give him dat name."

"Well! Well!" Dan patted the horse's flank. "Got a regular mascot and everything."

"Oh, yes," said Alice. "That's a big affair between those two."

"Hey, Princess—the title being Dan's favorite name for his favorite sister-in-law, 'you know more about that horse than I do, been hanging around the stable an awful lot lately, haven't you?"

"Want to make something of it?" Dan laughed. "No. I was thinking of Emperor Higgins. Better not let him catch you."

"Emperor Higgins doesn't know I'm alive. I'm just the young brat in the household."

"Well, you will stay single. Get married—give him another son-in-law and—"

"Yes I know. Somebody to take care of another Higgins enterprise. No, thank you."

Dan laughed again and stroked the gelding admiringly at "Broadway Bill" as Whitey led him into the stable. "He's a great horse, Princess. He signed. I wish he were racing right now. He'd create a young sensation, he's got everything. Background, stamina—and the will to win. That's important for a horse. The will to win."

Alice looked far away. "The Imperial track opened last week Dan."

"Don't I know it?" He caught himself. "Er—say now this boy friend—what's his name—Bill Taylor?"

"Why don't you Dan?"

"Why don't I what?"

"Why don't you take him down to the track? Start him racing?"

"I have," said Dan, "no intention of selling my horse."

"Rebellion! Eyes widened, lower jaws dropped."

"As a matter of fact, Dan went on evenly, "I'm leaving Higginsville in the morning."

Alice applauded lustily.

J. L. voice boomed. "Alice!"

Margaret's eyes blazed.

"You'll be good enough," said Dan, "to accept my resignation. Everything you say is true. I have neglected the business. The reason is simple. I hate it. I've always hated it. Not that it isn't a good business, mind you. It's fine—for you—Mr. Early—Mr. Winslow. I don't blame them for wanting it. They're suited for it. I'm not. I stuck it out for three years. I've been miserable every minute of the time. For years we've been making the Higgins Special for four cents and selling it for five. If only once we made it for five cents and sold it for four! Even that would help. I know I sound crazy to you. Maybe I am. But somehow you strike me the same way. Everything here seems lop-sided to me. The whole set-up Higginsville—the Higgins family—the Higgins enterprises—Oh, don't get offended, it's just that we don't speak the same language, that's all. You're interested in only one thing. Accumulating money. Expanding the Higgins enterprises. Gobbling up all the little fellows. You've just snatched the Acme Lumber Company away from some people who spent all their lives building it up. I hope it made you happy. Look at you! You haven't taken a vacation in forty years. You're just rotting away in your own little kingdom. If that's your idea how to live, you can have it. Not me. I'm getting out before I get nooked. I made a big mistake when I came here. I thought I was through with the race track business. When I saw all this, I imagined I found what I wanted. Well, it wasn't what I wanted at all. Say, listen. I wouldn't give up that horse for you or anybody else. If it weren't for "Broadway Bill," I'd have been out of this town long ago. I was broke when I got here, and I'm leaving the same way. I don't want a thing out of Higginsville. So if it's the same to you, you can accept my resignation. I'll wait for you in the car, Margaret."

Margaret stood, her face livid.

"If you're going to wait for me, you needn't bother!"

forwarded to the public service commission.

F. W. Buck, district manager for the company, said the borough of Everson had not paid the $750 due each year since 1933, and that "all we got was an arbitrary letter when we asked them to pay." He charged the borough was making "no real effort" to collect taxes.

Borough Attorney Harry W. Bryne, however, insisted the borough had "done everything possible" and pointed out that four large concerns which once supplied most of the work in the district are now completely shut down.

ELKS MEMORIAL TO CONGRESS

Calling for "the flaming spirit of a crusade" Michael F. Shannon, grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America, has launched a memorial to congress for legislation deemed necessary to eradicate communist and other subversive influences in the country.

This determination came with full knowledge that subversive interests are being allowed to grow and spread unchecked by official action of our federal government and that corre-tive bills of two sessions of congress have been permitted to die in committee. A challenge to all units of the order came in the form of a resolution from the Elks of Concord, Mass., whose home stands almost on the spot where "the embattled farmers stood" on that memorable day in April, 1775.

The petitions now in the hands of the 1400 Elk lodges throughout the country cover eight points of legislation:

1. Investigation of all subversive activities by the department of justice with ample funds to furnish personnel and cover expenses, with discretionary authority to publish facts concerning individuals or organizations seeking to overthrow the government by force or violence.

2. Outlawing organizations having for their purpose the overthrow by force or violence of the American constitutional government.

3. Making it a felony to advocate, promote or encourage such overthrow.

4. Denying use of the mails to publications advocating such overthrow or affiliated with outlawed organizations.

5. Prohibit interstate transportation of aliens seeking the overthrow of the United States government.

7. Denying entry into the United States of aliens known to be out of harmony with American form of government.

8. Providing for revocation of naturalization of naturalized citizens advocating overthrow or change of government through force or violence.

Orville J. Taylor

Arthur W. Cutten

Threatened with expulsion from the grain board, Arthur W. Cutten, right, millionaire Chicago grain dealer, nevertheless manages to smile as he leaves the agriculture department building in Washington with his attorney, Orville J. Taylor. Cutten was given a hearing before a cabinet committee on charges of attempting to manipulate the wheat market in 1930 by selling millions of bushels in violation of the grain futures act.

Robinson, Dressed As Woman, Escapes

FEDERAL AGENTS HOLD YOUNG COUPLE WITH STOLEN AUTOMOBILE

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 22.—Police announced today an automobile seized here had been identified as one stolen Jan. 5, in Moline, Ill., and expressed belief a "mysterious woman" who left the automobile a few seconds before they arrived was T. H. Robinson Jr., sought as the kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll of Louisville, Ky., last October.

A man and a woman, both of whom gave Houston addresses, were held for questioning by police at the request of the department of justice. The couple contended that they rented the car in Moline Jan. 5, and had since driven to Texas in it.

The mystery woman, who police said they believed was Robinson in a masquerade, got out of the machine in a garage.

Garage attendants declared they were unable to tell the direction the "woman" took. An extensive search was being conducted today.

A garage attendant said that when the car drove into the garage he asked the woman, who was hiding her face in her coat, if she was cold, he received no answer.

Officers questioned the couple in custody extensively but were unable to discover any identity of the "woman" other than the statement of the young couple that they had "given her a ride" for a few blocks and did not know her name or anything about her.

Gus Jones, San Antonio operative of the department of justice, told Houston officers he or another operative would come here to take charge. He asked that the couple arrested be held.

AT THE THEATERS

"Maybe It's Love" with Gloria Stuart and Ross Alexander opens at the Voncastle tonight. The story deals with a pretty stenographer who is in love with the office manager. He returns her affection but shies at the altar. Finally the boss's son becomes interested, and by following her married sister's recipe for landing a husband, she succeeds in obtaining a proposal. Then trouble starts. The budget won't balance. Her parents and sister-in-law make privacy impossible, and as the result, the husband walks out. How their affairs are straightened out, and their home re-established, leads to a climax that is not only unusual but entertaining.

Eddie Cantor in "Kid Millions" will be seen for the last times tonight at the Granada. The finale of the picture is in technicolor showing Eddie keeping his promise to the kids of the Bowery by opening a huge ice cream factory where they are all served free.
